

MEANS ON STAND; SMILES TELLING OF MONEY DEALS

submitting "an idea" to W. J. Burns, and subsequent appointment as manager of the "commercial department" of the Burns Detective Agency.

Not a German Spy.
Means declared the Hamburg-American Line had retained Burns. Here the jury was ordered out. Attorney Counselor, for the defense, explained that he expected to show the defendant was not a German spy.

In the absence of the jury Means said Burns was working for the Hamburg-American Line, in learning if English men-of-war or cruisers were being provisioned from the United States. This investigation also delved into the building of submarines in the United States for England. The court ruled out part of this testimony.

"I never knew of any plot on the part of any German officials, but I discovered a plot by German sympathizers," Means declared. "I informed the German government I would report anything they planned against the United States to Washington. I made out a report in order that Mr. Burns might submit it to the President."

The defendant read the report, which told of meetings General Huerta, ex-President of Mexico, attended in Barcelona, Spain, and agreed with German interests to foment war between the United States and Mexico, to take up the war supplies of the United States. They provided a "justa" to consolidate the Mexican factions for this purpose.

Filibuster Plot Predicted.

As the report proceeded it showed that Means predicted a filibustering expedition from the United States. The prediction was never verified. Named as involved in the plot were Gustavo Sales, who frequently saw Chandler Brothers, brokers, 34 Pine street, New York. Abraham Rader and his brother were named as holding 400 machine guns in New York city to be used in the war on the United States.

As the defendant read his report of March 5, 1915, it became more and more apparent that it was merely a "detective's report." Means believed this report was submitted to Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson.

The defendant declared he told Captain Boy-Ed he had given this information to the United States and consequently he was discharged. He then read a letter in which he declared his readiness to offer his services to the United States Government. He told of a decision to tell his story to "Joseph Daniels, because I know him."

He said he laid before Secretary Daniels reports of what the Germans were doing in this country and of methods of German in bringing about explosions in American munitions plants.

He said he told Secretary Daniels how German planters were placed in the du Pont powder and Bethlehem steel plants. Clergymen near these plants were the great plotters, the defendant declared.

The defendant declared he had no connections with the German government since the declaration of war on Germany by the United States. Means then spent considerable time denying testimony given by State witnesses.

Attacked by Three Dogs; Woman Badly Bitten; Saved by a Neighbor

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 6.—Attacked by three half-famished dogs while en route to her work, Miss Anna Henzel, of Fulton road, Reserve township, was bitten many times while walking along a country road near her home.

Both legs were badly lacerated and her hands show the print of many teeth marks as she fought off the dogs, which made many attempts to drag her to the ground. The animals sprang from a thicket and made repeated attacks.

The woman's cry for assistance was answered by a neighbor, H. Peters, of Fulton road, who fought off the animals just as she was about to collapse. The dogs have been roaming about that neighborhood several weeks, having been deserted by a family that moved away. The dogs were later rounded up and sent to the Animal Rescue League to be kept under observation for rabies.

HOSPITAL SEARCH FOR MISSING U. S. ARMY ENGINEERS

By J. W. PEGLER.

United Press Staff Correspondent.
AMERICAN FIELD HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, Dec. 6.—Search was begun of British front hospitals today with the hope of finding the missing American army engineers caught in the German advance around Cambrai. Until this is completed, headquarters will probably not issue any official statement of casualties.

It was semi-officially announced today that at least four officers and 280 men of the American army engineer detachment were in the thick of the Cambrai fighting. This was a party caught in an enemy barrage at Gossaucourt.

Joined British Units.
Some of them joined nearby British units and all day long Friday fought with the Tommies. The remainder attempted retirement under artillery, machine gun, and aeroplane fire. A majority of the whole, it was said, reached their back camp at Fins. Still others took refuge in dugouts and were captured. Some scattering few made their way back to the American base. Two hundred and eighty-four men departed from the American camp at Fins at 6 in the morning. They made their way to the Gossaucourt region in conjunction with a detachment of Canadians under a Canadian major. This officer is believed to have been a Californian and an ex-member of the famous Canadian American legion.

At 7 o'clock, shortly after the Americans and Canadians had arrived on the job, an enemy barrage enveloped Gossaucourt. Half an hour later, seeing no let-up in the hail of shells, the unarmed engineers attempted to retire. It was then that a goodly number joined with nearby British, and, grabbing rifles, fought throughout the remainder of the day.

Long Range Guns at Work.
While the 284 were in Gossaucourt under barrage, other engineers in the camp at Fins began experiencing shelling by German long-range guns. Two big shells exploded in the camp itself. The engineers there were ordered to scatter. Later they were assembled and each given a rifle and 200 rounds of ammunition.

RAIN OR SNOW BY TONIGHT, IS FORECAST

Washington will have rain or snow by tonight, according to the weather man.

A disturbance in atmospheric conditions in the South is moving North and by afternoon or evening will reach the Capital City.

The storm will not be general nor very severe, says the forecaster. The temperature now is only a few degrees above freezing, and if it drops just a little the precipitation will take the form of snow.

MAJ. GEN. O'RYAN BACK AT CAMP WADSWORTH

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Dec. 6.—Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan has returned to Camp Wadsworth and resumed command of the Twenty-seventh division of the United States army.

About the middle of September, General O'Ryan was ordered to France for a tour of observation, and he visited all sections of the battle-fronts.
